Château Bellevue

SAINT-EMILION GRAND CRU CLASSÉ

2025

Revue de presse
Press review

A medium-bodied red with crushed stone, blackberries, blueberries and a crunchy finish. Medium body. Very polished and pretty. 100% merlot

If the 2023 vintage of Château Bellevue revealed its potential to rise toward the top tier of classified growths, then 2025 marks the moment of metamorphosis, a butterfly freed from its chrysalis. Great terroir calls for a vintage worthy of it, and 2025 arrives at just the right moment. I can feel an energy on the verge of overflowing, its tension drawn taut like a fully stretched bow; yet the way it releases this energy is remarkably serene. Intense notes of black goji berry, black mulberry, and black cherry gradually seep into the chalky tannin structure, gently working this immense power open, releasing it, and then carrying it along the palate toward a vast, soaring finish, leaving behind a deep and resonant echo.

AMA

A serious little gem from clay and limestone soils, the 2025 Château Bellevue is 100% Merlot and sports a deep purple hue as well as gorgeous aromatics of cassis, juicy black cherries, graphite, and roasted herbs. On the palate, it's rich and medium to full-bodied, with remarkable purity and fine tannins. This is the kind of wine savvy readers should be snatching up, and it's going to challenge some of the top wines in the appellation.
